Classified project for Airbus D&S, through Antyas. It involved, among others, SPOT satellites' image processing.
- Oct. 2012 - July 2015 IT Engineer (C++, Python, Sqlite, Oracle) Nice Area – France
Member of the Data Replication team within Amadeus' Middleware department. Mainly focused on R&D tasks, I worked on:
+ designing new solutions to improve overall performance (reduce network overload, normalized and denormalized database designs, atomicity on fallbacks).
+ data replication over thousands of nodes. The type of data is static (countries, time zones, holidays from IATA) and extremely dynamic (any application within Amadeus can use our Framework).
+ designing and implementing abstract types across several containers (Oracle/Sqlite/C++) to erase our legacy data type discrepancies over the different parts of the data flow.
+ various scripts to prototype or automatize tasks: storage / retrieval / backup / cleanup after each build...
+ exporting data from our caches into two iterations of XMLs, generating XSLTs and XSDs from meta-XSLTs. This design allowed us to publish XML data into past and present schema versions.
+ designed and implemented modified Hepburn algorithm for Japanese transliteration.
+ decommissioned legacy terminal entries from IBM TPF system into Amadeus' new C++ architecture: OBE.
+ maintenance, support and point of contact for our applications.
- May 2012 - Aug. 2012 MSc Dissertation (Python/Django, JS, HTML5/CSS3, L^AT_EX) Edinburgh – Scotland
